

October 18, 2018

Coca-Cola Announces Key Leadership Changes, Including Election of New President and Chief Operating Officer and Succession Plan for the Chief Financial Officer

Board of Directors Elects Brian Smith to Serve as Incoming President and COO, Reporting to CEO James Quincey

Kathy Waller to Retire, Succeeded by John Murphy as Chief Financial Officer

New Chief Technical Officer Appointed, Chief Information Officer Expands Duties

ATLANTA--(BUSINESS WIRE)-- The Coca-Cola Company today announced key changes in top leadership, including the election of a new president and chief operating officer and a succession plan for the chief financial officer.

Brian Smith, who will become Coca-Cola president and chief operating officer on Jan. 1, 2019 (Photo: Business Wire)

The board of directors today elected Brian Smith to serve as president and COO, effective Jan. 1, 2019. He will report to James Quincey, the company's CEO. Smith is a 21-year Coca-Cola veteran who currently serves as president of the company's Europe, Middle East and Africa (EMEA) group.

The appointment of a president and COO will allow Quincey, who has served as CEO since May 2017 and is a member of the board of directors, to focus on the overall long-term strategic direction and success of the company. Smith is well-equipped to lead the company's field operations and bring an accelerated focus on executing against key strategies, due to his deep knowledge of the global Coca-Cola system, strong relationships with bottlers and customers and a proven track record of leadership.

John Murphy, who currently serves as president of the company's Asia Pacific group, will become senior vice president and deputy CFO on Jan. 1, 2019. He will be elevated to executive vice president and CFO on March 16, 2019, following the retirement of Kathy Waller.

Waller currently serves as executive vice president, CFO and president of Enabling Services. She will depart the company after 32 years of service to Coca-Cola, where she built a career that was marked by significant impact and contributions.

Smith named president and COO

Smith joined the company in 1997. His prior roles include serving as president of both the Brazil and Mexico divisions before being named group president for Latin America. He was named to his current position as group president of EMEA in 2016. His full bio is available at <https://www.coca-colacompany.com/our-company/operations-leadership-brian-smith>.

In EMEA, Smith oversaw the successful integration of the Europe, Eurasia and Africa groups into one cohesive operating group. Under his leadership, the group has grown organic revenues over the past eight quarters. In Latin America, Smith oversaw the acquisitions of several brands, including AdeS in Argentina and Santa Clara in Mexico.

Quincey became CEO on May 1, 2017. Prior to that role, he served as president and COO. Quincey's full bio is at <https://www.coca-colacompany.com/our-company/operations-leadership-james-quincey>.

"I have tremendous respect for Brian, who is a valued business partner," Quincey said. "He is the ideal person to steer the in-market executional leadership of the company, which will allow me to focus on the strategic direction of Coca-Cola as we continue to evolve as a total beverage company."

CFO transition

Waller will retire from Coca-Cola after a remarkable three-decade career. Waller, who assumed the role of CFO in 2014, has been instrumental in transforming, modernizing and simplifying the Coca-Cola finance function, especially technology solutions and in developing talent and keeping people at the forefront. She was founding chair of the company's Women's Leadership Council and supported the creation, roll-out and execution of the company's Women in Leadership Global Program. Her full bio is available at <https://www.coca-colacompany.com/our-company/senior-functional-leadership-kathy-n-waller>.

Murphy took his current role as head of the Asia Pacific group in 2016. He is also responsible for the company's Bottling Investments Group, which today is primarily focused on key markets in Southeast and Southwest Asia. He has worked in the Coca-Cola system since 1988 and has served in a number of senior finance, strategy and operations roles around the world. He qualified as a chartered accountant in his native Ireland. Murphy is a well-respected leader with deep financial and operating expertise, strong existing relationships with the company's finance division and a track record of delivering solid results across the global organization. Murphy's full bio is at <https://www.coca-colacompany.com/our-company/operations-leadership-john-murphy>.

As CFO, Murphy will be responsible for leading the company's global finance organization, including mergers and acquisitions; investor relations; tax; treasury; audit; accounting and controls; financial reporting; real estate; and risk management.

"I join everyone at Coca-Cola in thanking Kathy for her many years of exemplary service to the company," Quincey said. "She leaves a great legacy as a leader, including as a mentor who created a strong organization and put the building blocks in place to continue to transform and modernize our finance function. John will be a great fit as our new CFO, thanks to his broad experience in both finance and as an operational leader."

New Chief Technical Officer appointed; Chief Information Officer adds duties

The company also announced that Nancy Quan has been elected senior vice president and appointed Chief Technical Officer, effective Jan. 1, 2019, reporting to Quincey. She currently serves as a vice president for the company and Chief Technical Officer for Coca-Cola North America. Quan has worked for the company for 11 years. Her bio is available at <https://www.coca-colacompany.com/our-company/vice-presidents-nancy-w-quant>.

Quan succeeds Ed Hays, who will retire from the company on March 31, 2019. Hays will transition to a role as senior advisor on Jan. 1, 2019, reporting to Quincey. Hays, who has served as senior vice president and CTO since 2015, joined the company in 1985. His bio is available at <https://www.coca-colacompany.com/our-company/senior-functional-leadership-dr-ed-hays>.

Finally, Barry Simpson, who serves as senior vice president and CIO, is adding new duties that include oversight of portions of the company's Enabling Services organization. These functions currently report to Waller. Simpson, who will have the new title of senior vice president and Chief Information and Integrated Services Officer, will begin his expanded duties Jan. 1, 2019. Simpson's bio is available at <https://www.coca-colacompany.com/our-company/senior-leadership--barry-simpson>.

About The Coca-Cola Company

The Coca-Cola Company (NYSE: KO) is a total beverage company, offering over 500 brands in more than 200 countries and territories. In addition to the company's Coca-Cola brands, our portfolio includes some of the world's most valuable beverage brands, such as AdeS soy-based beverages, Ayataka green tea, Dasani waters, Del Valle juices and nectars, Fanta, Georgia coffee, Gold Peak teas and coffees, Honest Tea, innocent smoothies and juices, Minute Maid juices, Powerade sports drinks, Simply juices, smartwater, Sprite, vitaminwater and ZICO coconut water. We're constantly transforming our portfolio, from reducing sugar in our drinks to bringing innovative new products to market. We're also working to reduce our environmental impact by replenishing water and promoting recycling. With our bottling partners, we employ more than 700,000 people, helping bring economic opportunity to local communities worldwide. Learn more at Coca-Cola Journey at www.coca-colacompany.com and follow us on Twitter, Instagram, Facebook and LinkedIn.

The fairlife® brand is owned by fairlife LLC, our joint venture with Select Milk Producers Inc. Products from fairlife are distributed by our company and certain of our bottling partners.

The Coca-Cola Company
Investors and Analysts:
Tim Leveridge, +1-404-676-7563
or Media:
Scott Leith, +1-404-676-8768

Source: The Coca-Cola Company